

Country Bumpkins

City slickers are so last year. Rural, idyllic living is in—and anything but transitory.

Put away the sandals and get out the boots at Spring Creek Ranch.

The Wild Wild West

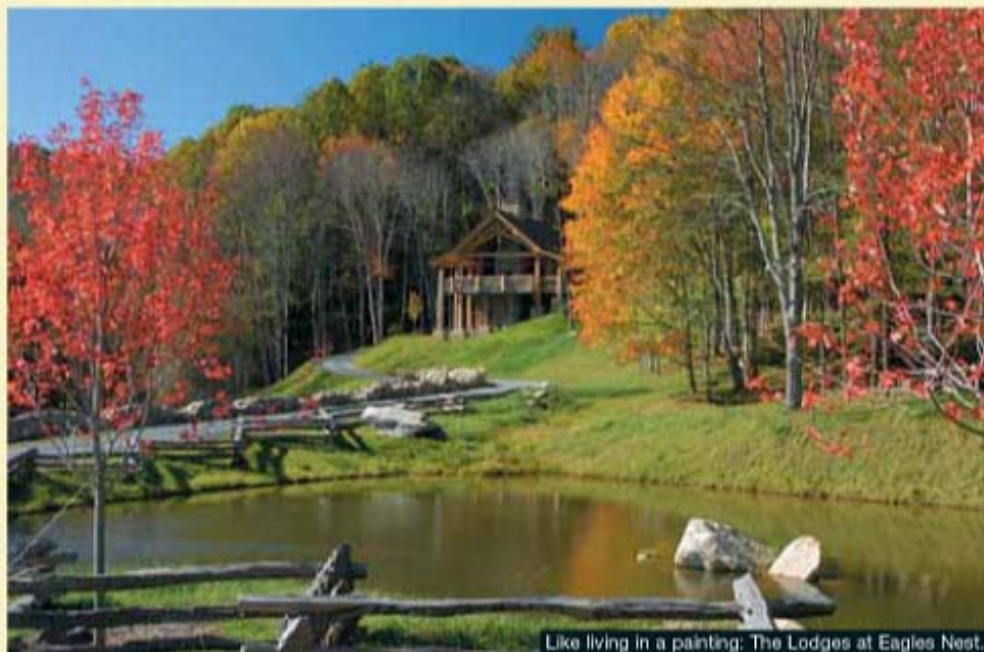

CALLING ALL CLANDESTINE COWBOYS AND GIRLS

Offering a sanctuary from urban stress and strain, Spring Creek Ranch in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, is a nature-inspired community built in the true spirit of the West. Luxury condominiums and executive homes are hidden amid the Teton Mountains with cattle ranches to the west and the National Elk Refuge to the east. No matter what the season, the ranch serves up invigorating adventures along with rough-hewn elegance. For Americana living at its best, visit springcreek ranch.com.

The New Frontier

HIGH COUNTRY HAVEN, HELLO MOTHER NATURE

Ask Banner Elk locals why they live in North Carolina's Blue Ridge Mountains and they'll go on for hours about the spontaneity and endless, innate beauty the high country holds. The Lodges at Eagles Nest, the newest multimillion-dollar, resort-style development from real estate tycoon John Turchin, lets you build a custom home right in the middle of the magic. With countless amenities and escapades available, the exclusive, gated community will make you nostalgic of summer camp days, nights by the fire and the real essence of family living; eaglesnestbe.com.

Like living in a painting: The Lodges at Eagles Nest.